

Is there a different accuracy distribution between watching less or more clips?

